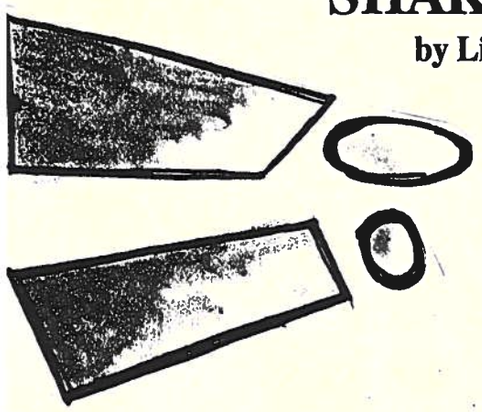
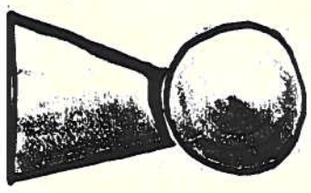
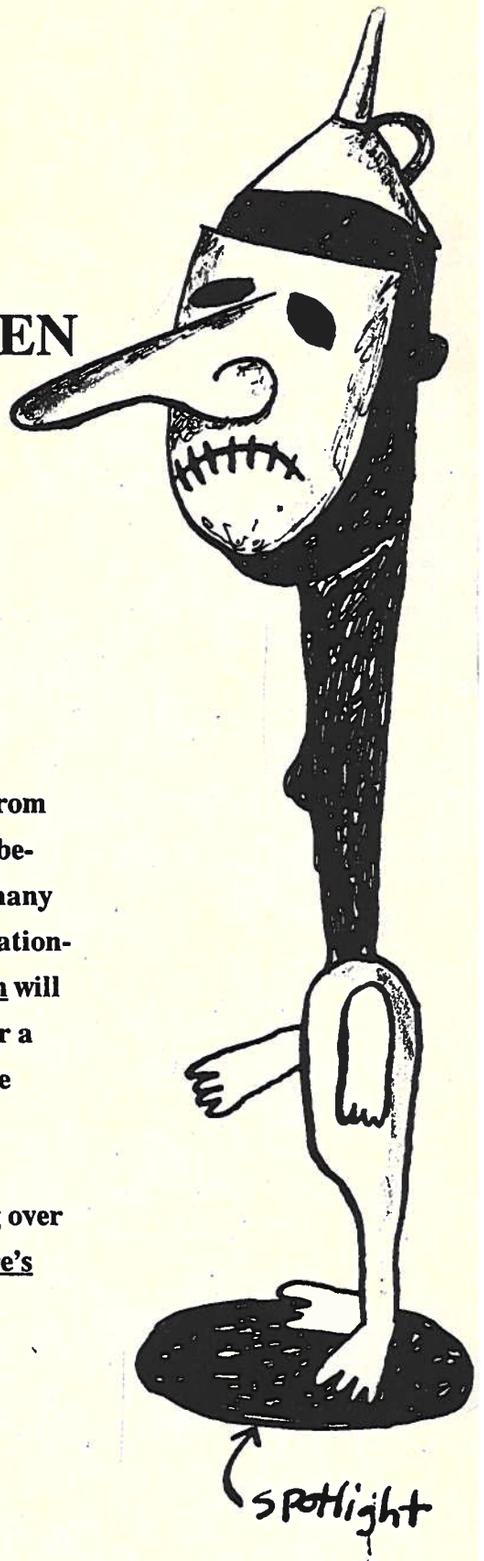
SHAKESPEARE'S WOMEN

by Libby Appel & Michael Flachmann

Directed by Roy Cameron
Designed by Robert Reid







Shakespeare's Women is composed of excerpts from Shakespearean texts which explore the struggle between the sexes. The authors have intertwined many works and the result provides a reflection on relationships in the 16th century. Shakespeare's Women will be produced in a modern day setting allowing for a more contemporary understanding of these same dynamics.

A cast of eleven meet the challenge of portraying over forty-five characters. Come and see Shakespeare's Women, a play packed with passion and beauty.
